

RIPE GRAIN

Pastor Steven L. Shelley · March 24, 2005

I had no more than sat down, but in the Spirit I saw this beautiful sheaf just real quickly – just a real quick picture of this beautiful sheaf of barley that had been bound together. And I saw it as it was being waved back and forth, and then frontward and backward, in all four directions – from the right to the left, back and forth, sort of east and west, and then north and south. I could see it waving in the air.

And the thing that I noticed about it in this just brief little vision of the mind, the spiritual mind, I noticed that little ripe grain, little ripe seed were falling off of this sheaf as it was being waved. The movement of this sheaf as it was going forth, back and forth and side to side was causing some of the ripe seed of the barley at the end to shake off.

Because you know when something gets ripe, it gets ready to turn loose. That membrane that holds it in place, it begins to weaken. And so just a little bit of shaking of wheat or barley, or even corn for that matter, when it's really, really good and ripe, you shake the stalk and the ear is so heavy it can fall right off.

And I saw those little tiny little kernels of barley falling down as this sheaf was being waved back and forth. And it brought to my spirit such a reminder of where we are this morning in God's appointed times. That means more to me in the Spirit than it's ever meant to me before.

And then there was another phrase that came into my spirit, "The fullness of the Gentiles" kept going over and over in my spirit. Hallelujah.
